

Part 7

Partnership and team games

[Multi-player chess games divide into two classes: games in which the players form partnerships or teams, and those in which everybody plays for himself. Games in the first class are very much more satisfactory. Many of them can be played as two-player games, one person playing all the men of his side, but usually it is intended that they should not be.]